Tamaya 京料理 Kyoto cuisine

A renowned Kyoto cuisine restaurant founded 400 years ago, located in front of Fushimi Inari-taisha Shrine.

Facing out onto the Fushimi-kaido road in front of Fushimi Inari-taisha Shrine and near the large gate at the front approach, Tamaya has long been the designated inn for the shrine and is blessed with the grace of Inari, the god of rice, sake and prosperity. The founder of Tamaya was a vassal of the feudal lord Toyotomi Hideyoshi, and as a reward for his distinguished service, was bestowed with this property. The second generation owner opened a teahouse. Since receiving the name of "Tatebajaya" (rest station teahouse) in 1615, it has to this day welcomed visitors to Fushimi Inari-taisha Shrine for some 400 years. In the Edo period, it was known for being the teahouse patronized by the feudal lords of each province who came to pray at the shrine on their way to Kyoto. Over the years, it has undergone several modifications and refurbishings. In 2012, the old restaurant building was completely renovated, and while it continues to be an example of Japanese architecture that is full of atmosphere, it has opened a new chapter in its history. Tamaya offers authentic Kyoto cuisine, and you can enjoy the delicate flavors of a Kyoto kaiseki course dinner that takes advantage of seasonal ingredients, or its famous "Daimyou Bento" (feudal lord lunch set). Please drop by on your visit to Fushimi Inari-taisha Shrine.

↑The photo shows Tamaya's famous "Daimyou Bento" lunch set, ¥5,700, with its three-layer stacked boxes, and the kaiseki cuisine course, starting from ¥8,500 (Prices include tax. Service charge is extra.). The menu contents change depending on the seasons.

←The katoumado bell-shaped window was transferred from the old building.

←In the Edo period, these signs were distributed to inns by various organizations to notify their members that where they were staying was safe and reliable. Tamaya has kept many of these old signs to this day.

←Chaired seating is available in a Japanese tatami mat room.

→A building where you can appreciate Japanese architecture.
